Dear Hiring Manager,

Most candidates specialise in one area. I deliver across several: content strategy, multilingual copywriting, visual design, and video production all grounded in a certified academic foundation and a track record of measurable results. That combination is what I bring to your team.

At Medmar Agency, I managed content production for four brand accounts simultaneously, delivering over 20 weekly assets across design, copy, and video in English, Arabic, and French. By independently building content calendars, analysing performance trends, and executing campaigns end-to-end, I contributed to a 30-40% increase in engagement while meeting every deadline across a three-month tenure. This experience sharpened my ability to work autonomously, think strategically, and produce at volume without sacrificing quality.

At UKAU Holdings, I brought the same rigour to an operational role coordinating 10+ executive meetings weekly, maintaining a 100-document records system, and drafting 30+ reports monthly with zero errors. I also identified and implemented three process improvements that reduced document processing time, demonstrating that I bring initiative and reliability to structured environments, not just creative ones.

Alongside my Master's in English Philology, I hold a TEFL Certification awarded with Distinction and a Professional Diploma in Graphic and Web Design. This means I don't just create content that I understand language structure at an academic level, design with professional tools, and communicate fluently across three languages. Whether your team needs someone to write, design, film, translate, or coordinate, I can deliver all of it to a professional standard from day one.

I am looking for a role where high standards are expected, creative and analytical thinking are both valued, and where I can contribute across more than one function. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my multilingual content, creative, and operational skills can add value to your team.

Thank you for considering my application.

Kind regards,
